

Owliver

Robert Kraus • Pictures by Jose Aruego & Ariane Dewey

Owliver

Robert Kraus Pictures by Jose Aruego & Ariane Dewey

PUFFIN BOOKS

For Augusta Baker, who likes Owls

"I am an orphan."

"I have no father."

"I have no mother."

"I don't have anybody," said Owliver.

"Don't be silly," said Owliver's father.
"You do have a father."

"Don't be silly," said Owliver's father.
"You do have a father."

"And a mother, too," said Owliver's mother.

"I know," said Owliver.

"I was just acting. I like to act."

Owliver acted all day.

Owliver acted all night.

"Owliver is so talented,"
said Owliver's mother.
"Better he should be a lawyer or a doctor,"
said Owliver's father.

Owliver's father gave him doctor toys

...and lawyer toys.

Owliver's mother gave him acting lessons,

Joy

Anger

Fear

Sadness

Goodness

Hate

Love

...including tap dancing.

"Talent should be encouraged," she said.

Owliver acted out a play
about a doctor and a lawyer who never meet (because Owliver played both parts).

And he pleased his mother
and he pleased his father.

"Owliver will become a doctor or a lawyer
when he grows up," said Owliver's father.

"Owliver will become an actor or a playwright when he grows up," said Owliver's mother.

But when Owliver grew up, guess what he became...

A FIREMAN!

Owliver

Robert Kraus • Pictures by Jose Aruego & Ariane Dewey

ISBN 0-14-054499-2

9 780140 544992

90101

£3.99